A House In The South
a house in the south
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's recklessness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime with a belly full of dirt, but he has no tales of adventure. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom everything that has happened at school that afternoon and even reviews a lesson in the arithmetic book and shows him that his spelling is still awfully bad. But not bad! Tom's half-brother, Henry, is always much worse. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house in search of entertainment. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, a man wearing a frock coat suggests that Tom is a fine young man and eventually chases the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of nothing. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
