The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects remotely on Tom’s misconduct and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time after skipping school and Dodge the night before. When asked why he was late, he admits he was skipping school that afternoon and went over to Mark's house where he was chased by a dog, and his collar was still around his neck. He lies about this and shows her that his collar is still around his neck. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house into the street. He is still whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, he is left behind by his friends, Tom and the new arrival come upon the smoke shop. The young man is surprised and eventually crosses the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. His friends try, and Tom tries to get them to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mode. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misdeeds and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, looking ill and dusty. He tells a wild story about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks if he will be allowed to skip school that afternoon and visit St. Petersburg. Tom assures her that his collar is still on, but she’s half-bred. Tom’s half-brother, Ben, shunt himself to dissuade him.

Tom goes out of the house to play at whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, he runs into a group of boys. He is overworked and arrogant. Tom and the new arrival each claim to have seen Aunt Polly at the post office. They throw stones at each other and eventually chase each other all the way home.
