The novel opens with Aunt Polly scowling the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He has been skipping school, playing hooky all day, and has no one to blame but himself. Aunt Polly is satisfied. She tells Tom that he will not be skipped school that afternoon and evening. Tom grumbles about the unfairness of it all and even says he would rather work than go to school. Aunt Polly takes him to school and shows him that his clothes are still wet from the rain. Tom is sent to work, and his work is not easy.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for "a white alley." Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at suppertime, and she asks him about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him how much he needs to be whipped. Tom's father has been away in the East, and Aunt Polly is satisfied. She says that Tom's half-brother, Huckleberry Finn, is coming to visit. Aunt Polly has arranged for Tom to work for Huckleberry and eventually to take the new arrival on a journey.
