The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, dirty and dirty and all holes about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly inquires if Tom was skipped school that afternoon and went nowhere near the bank. Tom denies it, but Aunt Polly is satisfied. She orders Tom to make up for his absence by cleaning the house. Tom groans and eventually cleans the house all the way down.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jon passes by, and Tom begs Jon to give him some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of sandwich. Jon almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases Jon off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his bands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous love for the boys who get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper-time, and Aunt Polly tells him to take his clothes off; he has about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he must be whipped and turned out of school for that afternoon and next morning. Tom’s whole soul is full of remorse, and he vows that if he is whipped, he will die of shame. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom is left to his own thoughts. Tom goes out of the house to whiten the fence. He has no desire to work, but he feels that his reputation is at stake. Tom is a clever boy, and he plans to outwit his aunt.
